Professional Summary

During my education, I worked in different fields from the field of computers, and thanks to this, I learned about teamwork and different working environments. During my Decathlon journey, I kept in constant contact with customers and gave them advice, thereby improving my ability to communicate with people. I received a team leadership offer from this company in a short time, but I did not accept it because it would be a choice that contradicted my dreams. I studied at the faculty of computer engineering for two years in Turkey. I have become a business-ready developer by increasing my technical and practical skills with the programming department that I am still continuing.
